Music 103 — Week 8 Notes

Oct 23, 2026 · @Michael J

Week 8 traces the Beatles from Liverpool cover band (1962) to studio-based art rock (1967), then sets the Rolling Stones against them as rock's darker, blues-based, politically charged counterpart.

- 8.1 (slides only, no recording): cities and popular music, the British Invasion, The Ed Sullivan Show, Beatlemania.
- 8.2 (slides + Oct 21 recording): the Beatles' expanding sound (Rubber Soul, Revolver, Sgt. Pepper), early rock criticism, and the Rolling Stones.
- Unit title: "The 1960s Continued: The British Invasion, American Popular Music, and 60s Counterculture."
- Related reading: Breihan, "The Beatles – 'I Want to Hold Your Hand'" (The Number Ones, pp. 35–48); William Mann, Richard Goldstein and Ellen Willis pieces in the Brackett reader.
- 8.3 (slides + two Oct 23 recordings): San Francisco counterculture, Janis Joplin, Jimi Hendrix, and the festivals (Monterey, Woodstock, Altamont).

Week 8.1 — The British Invasion and Beatlemania

The Beatles' U.S. breakthrough in early 1964 marks the start of the British Invasion. (No recording for this lecture; notes are from the slides.)

Course texts for this lecture

Lecture point	Course text	Use it for
"I Want to Hold Your Hand" and the U.S. marketing push (Dec 1963 – Jan 1964)	Breihan, "The Beatles – 'I Want to Hold Your Hand,'" The Number Ones (2022), pp. 35–48	How one #1 single opened the British Invasion; named on the slide ("see Breihan")
Beatles taken seriously by critics; Mahler comparison	William Mann, in Brackett, The Pop, Rock, and Soul Reader (2020)	First "serious" classical-style criticism of a pop group

Lecture point	Course text	Use it for
Where the Beatles came from: American rock 'n' roll, R&B, Brill Building and girl-group covers	Breihan, "Chubby Checker – 'The Twist,'" The Number Ones, pp. 11–21; Brackett reader	The early-60s U.S. chart the Beatles walked into; "Twist and Shout" grew out of the twist craze
Beatlemania, records as mass-marketed products	Frith, "The Industrialization of Music," in The Popular Music Studies Reader (2000), pp. 231–238	Framing Beatlemania as a product of the music industry and mass media, not just talent
Cities and scenes; 1960s pop as a topic	Brabazon, Popular Music: Topics, Trends & Trajectories (2012)	Background on city scenes (Liverpool, the Cavern)

The Breihan and Mann readings are the ones tied directly to slides; the other three are general background from the course list.

Cities and popular music

- Opening images: Penny Lane street sign (Liverpool), the Beatles playing the Cavern Club (Liverpool cellar club).
- Point: a scene grows out of a specific city and its venues. Liverpool's club circuit shaped the early Beatles.

The Beatles: early years

- Started as a skiffle band in Liverpool clubs; grew out of John Lennon's group The Quarrymen.
- Repertoire was mostly cover songs: R&B, rock 'n' roll, Brill Building pop, soul hits.
- Slide pairs Chuck Berry with the Beatles: American rock 'n' roll is their direct model.
- "Love Me Do" — U.K. hit in 1962; U.S. hit only in 1964.

Please Please Me (1963, U.K.) and With the Beatles

- Please Please Me: 8 songs by Lennon–McCartney + 6 covers (e.g. the Shirelles, Goffin and King).
- "I Saw Her Standing There" (original) — opening track; bass riff borrowed from a Chuck Berry song; made to sound live (the "One, two, three, four…" count-in).

- "Twist and Shout" (cover; written by Phil Medley and Bert Berns) — first recorded by the Top Notes (1961), then the Isley Brothers (1962).

Why the Beatles stood out

- Sounded distinct from the popular music of the time.
- Media sensation in the U.K. in 1963, in the U.S. in 1964.
- American appeal: the novelty of a British pop group set them apart.
- "Overwhelming charisma" that resonated especially with white, middle-class teenagers, through:
  - energy of performance
  - variety of repertoire
  - musical skill

The Beatles and rock criticism

- One of the first popular music groups taken seriously by critics.
- William Mann (in Brackett, The Pop, Rock, and Soul Reader) compares the Beatles to Austrian composer Gustav Mahler.

The British Invasion

- Definition: the rise in popularity of British music and culture in the U.S. during the mid-1960s.
- Dec 1963 – Jan 1964: U.S. marketing push; "I Want to Hold Your Hand" released as a single (Breihan, The Number Ones, pp. 35–48).
- First U.S. albums, both 1964: Introducing… The Beatles (Vee-Jay) and Meet the Beatles! (Capitol, "The First Album by England's Phenomenal Pop Combo").

The Ed Sullivan Show

- First appearance February 9, 1964 — considered the beginning of the British Invasion.
- Songs: "All My Loving," "Till There Was You," "She Loves You" / "I Saw Her Standing There," "I Want to Hold Your Hand."
- Returned Feb. 16 and Feb. 25 (as given on the slide), then August 14, 1965.

Beatlemania

- Term for the intense fandom around the Beatles (images: screaming fans, "'Beatlemania' Sweeps U.S." headline, airport crowds).
- 1965: concert at Shea Stadium (a baseball stadium — a new scale for a rock concert).
- A Hard Day's Night (1964): their first album of all original songs, and the name of the accompanying movie.

Week 8.2 — The Beatles Go to the Studio; the Rolling Stones (Oct 21)

Fan noise made live shows impossible, so the Beatles turned the studio into their instrument; by 1967 pop was being treated as art. The Stones were marketed as their darker opposite. Points marked (lecture) were said in class but are not on the slides.

Assignment tips (first ~7 min of class)

- Review assignment: you listen to a song/album and respond to a review written around the time of the album's release. Submit through the portal; details were discussed for Friday.
- Open with a short (~100-word) description that gets to the heart of the song; you choose what to include.
- Integrating quotes: don't drop a quote in and move on. Set it up in your own words, quote, then explain why it matters — "help the plane take off, then help it land." You can quote just part of a long sentence.
- Be present in the writing. Avoid pure summary; dig into details and make your own connections. First person ("I") is generally acceptable in arts and humanities writing — but you're describing your listening, not claiming every listener feels the same.

Recap: why the Beatles left the stage (lecture)

- Ed Sullivan was a different kind of TV performance from American Bandstand.
- Beatlemania was led mainly by young women; fans also copied the band's hair and clothes.
- Shea Stadium (1965): the band was a tiny figure on a baseball field, with no screens and only the stadium PA (the one used for organ music and announcers). Fans screamed over everything, and the band couldn't hear themselves play.

- Result: fan noise "takes over" the music → a reason to withdraw from live performance and spend time in the studio. Meanwhile the Beach Boys and California groups were also pushing studio pop.

Expanding the sound: A Hard Day's Night (1964), Beatles for Sale (1964), Help! (1965)

- More musical and technological resources; less focus on capturing live energy.
- Four-track recording.
- Overdubbing = layering vocal/instrumental parts one after another.
- (lecture) Example in class: Les Paul and Mary Ford — record one part, play it back, sing/play another part over it. A slight delay between the layered voices gives an echo effect.

Rubber Soul (1965)

- Changes become much more pronounced:
  - subtle instrumentation
  - Eastern influence — sitar on "Norwegian Wood" (played in class)
  - reflexive lyrics — "In My Life"
  - "artsy" cover photo
- (lecture) Lyrics move away from Chuck Berry-style songs about teenage/high-school life toward introspection.
- (lecture) Transatlantic rivalry: Rubber Soul pushed Brian Wilson (Beach Boys) to go further in the studio and in songwriting; the two groups kept trying to one-up each other.
- (lecture) Cover: stretched, warped-lens photo that points toward the psychedelic West Coast look; stylized title, no band name.
- With Revolver and Bob Dylan's albums, Rubber Soul helped convince listeners that rock could be for adults — "intellectual inclinations."

Revolver (1966) and Richard Goldstein

- (lecture) Cover: mixed-media collage plus line drawing, in line with pop art; again only the title.
- Richard Goldstein — among the first of a "new breed" of critic. (lecture) Earlier pop writing came from middle-aged critics; Goldstein wrote from inside youth culture.

- He uses an "alternative aesthetic" that matches the music.
- Key quote: Rubber Soul brought baroque progressions and "Oriental" instruments into commercial pop; Revolver "does the same for electronic music." Much of the sound is atonal, much of the vocal dissonant. Instead of hiding voices in echo, Revolver shows the mechanics of pop openly as part of the composition.

"Tomorrow Never Knows" (Revolver)

- "Its place in the pantheon of psychedelic music is assured." Lyrics resemble a mantra in form and message.
- Goldstein: a mix of "acid-Buddhist imagery" and a "rock beat."
- (lecture) Lyrics drawn from a book about expanding one's mind; themes of spirituality.
- Vocals run through a speaker cabinet — the studio as instrument. (lecture) Lennon's voice sounds like it comes from somewhere else; the technique is still used in pop.
- Tape loops. (lecture) An early form of sampling: short pieces of tape looped and mixed in — animal-like sounds, laughter, sounds played backwards. All done by hand with limited gear, with producer George Martin.
- (lecture) The experiments are prominent but don't bury the song; it is still a rock record.

Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band (1967)

- Extensive use of the recording studio (again, studio as instrument).
- Concept album.
- Sound effects, tape collages, orchestral instrumentation, sound processing.
- Withdrawal from live performance.
- Goldstein's question: too much excess in recording? (lecture) Some critics felt they took experimentation too far, yet it is now a classic.
- (lecture) Lyrics like "I'd love to turn you on" were heard as drug references.

"A Day in the Life"

- 41-piece orchestra.
- Middle section: atonal crescendo.
- Kroll: "a sublime achievement of their brilliant and startlingly effective popular art" (the slide misspells it "suburb").
- Distinct sections written by Lennon and McCartney.

- "I'd love to turn you on" → BBC banned the song.
- Final chord: one E-major chord struck at once on 3 pianos and a harmonium.
- (lecture) Compared with "Wouldn't It Be Nice" / "Good Vibrations," it brings in elements of art music.
- (lecture) Class watched the filmed recording session. Only three years after Ed Sullivan, the band is far more experimental. The divide between popular music and "high" art is narrowing.

The Rolling Stones

- Formed 1962, London.
- Image: ironic detachment, arrogance, aggressive sexuality — the opposite of the Beatles.
- Raw, blues-based sound.
- (lecture) Record labels presented them as the Beatles' antithesis; marketing pitted the two bands against each other. The bands themselves were friendly: Sgt. Pepper's cover includes a "Welcome the Rolling Stones" nod.
- (lecture) The Stones followed the Beatles into psychedelia: Their Satanic Majesties Request (1967) has a cover very like Sgt. Pepper's ("She's a Rainbow").
- (lecture) Around 1968 both bands went back to rootsier rock (for the Beatles, the Get Back sessions).

Ellen Willis and "Street Fighting Man"

- Ellen Willis review (Brackett, 1969): one of the first women rock critics.
- Connects the Stones to politics and counterculture.
- Fails to mention the Stones' misogyny at the time.
- "Street Fighting Man" — Beggars Banquet* (1968), seen as a "return to form."
- Politics: Tariq Ali and an anti-war rally.
- Ambiguous relationship between rock and rebellion. (lecture) The song is about street violence but also asks what a musician can do besides play in a rock band.
- Willis compares it to the Beatles' "Revolution."
- (lecture) Beggars Banquet cover: the original graffiti-covered toilet-wall image was rejected as vulgar and replaced with a plain invitation-style cover ("R.S.V.P.").
- (lecture) Next class (Friday): the American context and late-60s counterculture.

The Vosk transcript of the recording was rough. Check names you plan to quote, like "Kroll" and the book behind "Tomorrow Never Knows," against the readings.

Week 8.3 — Psychedelic Rock, Joplin, Hendrix, and the Festivals (Oct 23)

San Francisco's counterculture brought blues back through psychedelic rock. Janis Joplin and Jimi Hendrix both broke through at the Monterey Pop Festival (1967) and both died in 1970. Then Woodstock and Altamont (1969) became the symbolic "end of the sixties." Points marked (lecture) come from the two Oct 23 recordings. The festival slides were only started in class and will be finished Monday.

Assignment reminders (lecture)

- The submission portal is open. In class he showed a past student's paper as an example, one way to do it, not the only way. That paper's review came from Rock's Backpages.
- If the review is an excerpt, it's fine to say so. Don't leave a quote standing on its own; frame it and make clear where it comes from.
- You can use any citation style, but the review must be in your references.

Recap and links (lecture)

- "Street Fighting Man" was heard as the Stones' most political song: tied to an anti-war activist, yet sung by wealthy British rock stars.
- Joplin and Hendrix bring rock back toward the blues (the course's earlier "periods" of blues). Both mix blues with psychedelic rock, and both rose through festival performances.

American counterculture

- The search for alternatives to middle-class life. (lecture) Youth from affluent families breaking away from their parents' lives.
- Eastern influence, birth control, anti-war, drugs.
- San Francisco (lecture: Haight-Ashbury):
  - spiritual Mecca for the counterculture
  - growing psychedelic rock scene — "acid rock"
  - community values

- (lecture) Next week: much of this idealism fades and turns cynical.

Janis Joplin (1943–1970, Port Arthur, Texas)

- 1966–68: Big Brother and the Holding Company (San Francisco).
- Called the "best white blues singer of all time."
- 1968: leaves the band → more popular (thanks to the Monterey Pop Festival) → Columbia Records. (lecture) The label pushed her toward a solo career, leaving the other members behind.
- Blues and R&B: "You can't sing a Bessie Smith vocal with a rock band, so I had to make up my own way of doing it." (lecture) Bessie Smith = classic blues, a stage performer, unlike acoustic-guitar country blues. Joplin had to adapt that power to an electric rock band.
- Uninhibited performance style and public persona:
  - "…she brings all of herself into a performance."
  - "…the kids want a lot of something now rather than a little of hardly anything spread over 70 years."
  - Image: "one of the boys" vs. "victim." (lecture) Her persona was tied to excess and drug use. Critics debated whether she was breaking barriers as a woman in rock or was a victim of the industry.

"Ball and Chain" (Monterey Pop, 1967)

- Original by Big Mama Thornton. (lecture) Thornton performed it in San Francisco in the 60s but recorded it later; there are open questions about rights and credit.
- Festival recognition for Joplin. (lecture) The set was so strong that the filmmakers had her perform again so it could be filmed for the Monterey documentary. The crowd shots show the audience in awe.
- Live version on Cheap Thrills (1968).
- (lecture) Cheap Thrills cover by underground comic artist Robert Crumb: a cartoon instead of her photo. It includes racial stereotypes; some call it satire, but the lecture treats it as harmful.
- (lecture) Pearl came out in January 1971, after her death in October 1970. It was on Columbia, produced by Paul Rothchild (who also worked with the Doors) and includes "Me and Bobby McGee."

Jimi Hendrix (1942–1970, Seattle)

- Launched solo career in London. (lecture) He formed the Jimi Hendrix Experience with British musicians. Self-taught by ear from the radio, he played a right-handed guitar upside down.
- Amplified blues + psychedelic rock.
- Electric guitar as an electronic instrument: sustain, feedback, wah-wah pedal.
- Theatrical stage performance. (lecture) He played up sexuality and masculinity on stage.
- Uncomfortable contradictions in counterculture. (lecture) The counterculture saw itself as progressive but was limited on race and women. Joplin and Hendrix were among the few women and Black performers at its centre.
- Influenced by Dylan ("Like a Rolling Stone," "All Along the Watchtower"). (lecture) He brought Dylan's personal songwriting into performance.
- Showmanship a gimmick? (Dawbarn in Brackett). (lecture) Was it marketing or authentic expression?

"Hey Joe" (live at Monterey Pop, 1967)

- Performance style, use of guitar.
- Festival performance launches his U.S. career. Slide photo: Hendrix setting his guitar on fire.
- (lecture) "Hey Joe" has no clear author: like blues standards, it was passed down and reworked, now in a psychedelic setting.
- (lecture) His raw power set the path for hard rock and heavy metal (e.g. Led Zeppelin) — next week.

"Voodoo Child (Slight Return)"

- Electric Ladyland (1968); single in the U.K. in 1970.
- Final "Experience" album.
- Improvisation, wah-pedal intro, effects.
- Psychedelic blues — (lecture) Delta blues meets psychedelic sound through studio technology.
- Studio jam. (lecture) It grew out of long jams; the album version came from only a few takes.
- Live performances varied in length.

- (lecture) Hendrix built Electric Lady Studios in New York, still in use today. He recorded there for only a few weeks before he died.

Festivals

Monterey Pop Festival (June 16–18, 1967, Monterey County Fairgrounds, CA)

- The "Summer of Love."
- 30,000 fans (some estimates far higher).
- Anti-materialism vs. commercialism.

Woodstock (Aug 15–17, 1969, Bethel, NY — "3 Days of Peace & Music")

- Images of hippies, peace, love; "Woodstock Nation."
- Dearth of women and African Americans on the bill.
- Slides: "Hippies Mired in Sea of Mud" headline; the Woodstock film (1970, dir. Michael Wadleigh) — "400,000 other beautiful people."
- Young's fictional review: a fan who owns every clipping, Life special, Rolling Stone issue and the album, and has seen the movie three times. The festival becomes something you consume.

Altamont (Dec 6, 1969, Altamont Speedway, CA)

- Free concert planned by the Stones to end their tour.
- Attendance around 300,000.
- Last-minute venue changes, logistical problems; Hell's Angels hired as security.
- Four deaths (three accidental); Meredith Hunter killed by the Hell's Angels.
- Hell's Angels, violence, paranoia — Rolling Stone cover: "The Rolling Stones Disaster at Altamont: Let It Bleed" (Jan 21, 1970).
- The symbolic and literal "end of the sixties." Csicsery (in Brackett) argues the counterculture's peace and love sat alongside police violence against the Black Panthers, the Vietnam War, and the election of Spiro Agnew.
- (lecture) Monday: a quick wrap-up of festivals, then the early 1970s as a reaction to the sixties.

These recordings were also machine-transcribed, so check names like Rothchild and Crumb before quoting them.

Key terms, dates and songs

Term / item	Date	What to remember
Skiffle / The Quarrymen	late 1950s	Beatles' roots: Lennon's skiffle group in Liverpool clubs
"Love Me Do"	U.K. 1962, U.S. 1964	First hit
Please Please Me	1963 (U.K.)	8 Lennon–McCartney originals + 6 covers
"I Saw Her Standing There"	1963	Original; Chuck Berry bass riff; live-sounding count-in
"Twist and Shout"	1963	Cover (Medley/Berns); Top Notes 1961, Isley Brothers 1962
British Invasion	mid-1960s	Rise of British music and culture in the U.S.
The Ed Sullivan Show	Feb 9, 1964	First U.S. TV appearance = start of the British Invasion
Beatlemania	1963–66	Intense fandom, mostly young women
Shea Stadium concert	1965	Stadium scale; fans drown out the band
A Hard Day's Night	1964	First all-original album, plus a film
Four-track / overdubbing	1964–65	Layering parts one after another
Rubber Soul	1965	Sitar ("Norwegian Wood"), reflexive lyrics ("In My Life"), "rock for adults"
Revolver	1966	Electronic sounds; Goldstein review
"Tomorrow Never Knows"	1966	Psychedelic; mantra lyrics; vocals through speaker cabinet; tape loops
Studio as instrument	1966–67	The studio itself is used to create sound
Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band	1967	Concept album; band withdraws from live performance

Term / item	Date	What to remember
"A Day in the Life"	1967	41-piece orchestra; atonal crescendo; BBC ban; E-major final chord
William Mann	1963	Critic who compared the Beatles to Mahler
Richard Goldstein	1966–67	"New breed" critic; praised Revolver, questioned Sgt. Pepper's excess
Ellen Willis	1969	One of the first women rock critics; Stones + politics
The Rolling Stones	formed 1962, London	Ironic, arrogant, sexual image; raw blues-based sound
"Street Fighting Man" / Beggars Banquet	1968	"Return to form"; Tariq Ali, anti-war rally; compared with "Revolution"

Added from 8.3

Term / item	Date	What to remember
Counterculture / Haight-Ashbury	mid–late 1960s	Alternatives to middle-class life; San Francisco = "spiritual Mecca"; "acid rock"
Janis Joplin	1943–1970	Port Arthur, TX; Big Brother and the Holding Company (1966–68); Columbia; "one of the boys" vs "victim"
"Ball and Chain"	1967 (Monterey)	Big Mama Thornton original; Joplin's breakthrough; live on Cheap Thrills (1968)
Pearl	1971	Released after Joplin's death
Jimi Hendrix	1942–1970	Seattle; career launched in London; guitar as electronic instrument (sustain, feedback, wah-wah)
"Hey Joe"	1967 (Monterey)	Theatrical performance; launched his U.S. career
"Voodoo Child (Slight Return)"	1968	Electric Ladyland; final Experience album; psychedelic blues studio jam

Term / item	Date	What to remember
Dawbarn	—	Brackett reading: was Hendrix's showmanship a gimmick?
Monterey Pop Festival	June 16–18, 1967	Summer of Love; ~30,000 people; anti-materialism vs commercialism
Woodstock	Aug 15–17, 1969	Bethel, NY; "Woodstock Nation"; few women and African Americans
Altamont	Dec 6, 1969	Stones' free concert; Hell's Angels security; four deaths incl. Meredith Hunter; "end of the sixties"

Review questions

1. Why is the Feb 9, 1964 Ed Sullivan appearance treated as the start of the British Invasion?
2. Name three qualities that gave the Beatles their appeal to American teenagers.
3. How did Beatlemania and stadium concerts like Shea push the Beatles toward the studio?
4. Define overdubbing. How did four-track recording change what a band could do?
5. List three ways Rubber Soul differs from the early Beatles albums.
6. According to Goldstein, what did Revolver do for electronic music?
7. What does "studio as instrument" mean? Give two techniques from "Tomorrow Never Knows."
8. What makes Sgt. Pepper a concept album, and why did Goldstein question it?
9. Describe three musical features of "A Day in the Life" and why the BBC banned it.
10. How were the Rolling Stones positioned against the Beatles, both in image and in sound?
11. What does Ellen Willis connect "Street Fighting Man" to, and what does her review leave out?
12. Why is the link between rock and rebellion described as "ambiguous"?

Added from 8.3

- What did the San Francisco counterculture stand for, and how did "acid rock" fit it?

- What does Joplin's Bessie Smith quote say about bringing classic blues into a rock band?
- Explain the "one of the boys" vs. "victim" debate about Joplin.
- Why were Monterey Pop performances ("Ball and Chain," "Hey Joe") career-making?
- How did Hendrix treat the electric guitar as an electronic instrument? Name three techniques.
- What "uncomfortable contradictions" in the counterculture do Joplin and Hendrix expose?
- Contrast Monterey, Woodstock and Altamont. Why is Altamont called the "end of the sixties"?

Sources

- Week 8.1 and 8.2 lecture slides; Oct 21 lecture recording (machine-transcribed, rough).
- Tom Breihan. "The Beatles – 'I Want to Hold Your Hand.'" The Number Ones: Twenty Chart-Topping Hits That Reveal the History of Pop Music. Da Capo, 2022. pp. 35–48.
- Tom Breihan. "Chubby Checker – 'The Twist.'" The Number Ones. Da Capo, 2022. pp. 11–21.
- David Brackett. The Pop, Rock, and Soul Reader: Histories and Debates. Oxford University Press, 2020. (William Mann; Richard Goldstein; Ellen Willis.)
- Simon Frith. "The Industrialization of Music." The Popular Music Studies Reader. Eds. Andy Bennett, Barry Shank and Jason Toynbee. Routledge, 2000. pp. 231–238.
- Tara Brabazon. Popular Music: Topics, Trends & Trajectories. Sage, 2012.
- Elias Leight. "Forever No. 1: The Beach Boys, 'Good Vibrations.'" Billboard, June 18, 2025. (Background for the Beatles–Beach Boys rivalry in 8.2.)
- Week 8.3 lecture slides; two Oct 23 lecture recordings (machine-transcribed, rough).
- Brackett, The Pop, Rock, and Soul Reader (2020): Dawbarn on Hendrix; Csicsery on Altamont; Young's fictional Woodstock review.